INVENTOR'S DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

Part of the patenting process is the documentation of the invention. It is important to completely disclose the invention and to disclose the best way to practice it. It is better to disclose too much to us, rather than too little. It is also important to correctly name the inventors, those persons who contributed to the conception of the invention. If you should have any questions or comments, please contact us.

STATEMENT OF INVENTION: Attach a statement which briefly describes the invention.

Explain the scope of your invention and include a drawing of the invention where necessary to describe the invention. Furnish important distinguishing features over the prior art (what has been done before) known to the inventor(s) and the significance or advantage thereof. Set forth the problems or shortcomings of what was done before. Spell out details of any surprising results observed and/or how problems in the field of invention are solved. EACH PAGE OF THE STATEMENT OF INVENTION SHOULD PREFERABLY BE DATED, SIGNED BY THE INVENTOR(S), AND SIGNED BY ONE OR MORE WITNESSES.

STATEMENT OF PRIOR ART: Attached a statement describing the prior art. Indicate any knowledge you may have of any related work anywhere. Include any patents, articles in periodicals, reports, other documents and teachings pertinent to the invention. Attach copies where possible. Identify related and competitive products.

DRAWINGS: Attach a drawing or sketch of the invention, dated, signed by the inventor(s), and signed, "Read and Understood," by one or more witnesses, if possible.

IMPORTANT DATES: List important dates relating to the invention.
